
A CODE OF PRACTICE FOR DECLARING AND DEALING WITH CONFLICTS OF INTERESTS

1. Background

The Royal College of Physicians set a precedent in 1986 with the publication of a report ‘The Relationship between Physicians and the Pharmaceutical Industry.’ This document and similar documents by ‘The British Thoracic Society (BTS)’ and by ‘The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE)’, have informed the policy set out in the BSACI Code of Practice for declaring and dealing with conflicts of interest.

2. General Principles

The aim of the BSACI is to improve allergy care through education, training and research. The BSACI is a charitable professional organisation and has the responsibility to ensure that patients receive high quality care that is free from undue influence. In order to be able to deliver high quality and innovative care BSACI needs to work collaboratively with industry and other public, private and voluntary bodies and charities. Partnership working brings many benefits, but also creates the risk of conflicts of interest. By implementing this policy, the BSACI and those with whom we work with, will understand the steps needed to deliver the best care and protect themselves from allegations that they have acted inappropriately.

Biomedical industry whilst clearly serving a socially beneficial function needs to make a profit in order to satisfy the requirements of shareholders and be able to invest in new research. Collaboration of first-class clinical research units with biomedical industry can yield important therapeutic advances. Likewise commercial sponsorship and collaboration with industry can be of great benefit to research and education for members of a professional society such as the BSACI. Thus the BSACI and the biomedical industry share certain goals, but their roles and responsibilities are different and subject to different pressures. Healthcare Professionals as well as their professional bodies should therefore conduct themselves appropriately when engaging in a relationship with industry. It is important that the BSACI acts responsibly in upholding professional independence and safeguarding the interests of patients. As such its activities must be kept open to public scrutiny and must be free from commercial or personal interests.

This code of practice has been agreed by the BSACI in order to avoid any public concern that pecuniary or other interests might prejudice the advice of the BSACI and the arrangements that govern relationships of the board and the committees.

3. Scope

This document sets out to give guidance for relations between the biomedical industry and BSACI members, especially its committee members and guideline developers.

This code of practice covers the following individuals:

- President and Trustees of the Society
- All employees and associates of the Society
- Members of the Society who sit on BSACI standing Committees, Guideline Committees and Specialist Advisory Groups and other ad-hoc Committees that may be convened by the BSACI;
- Clinicians, patients or other experts who are invited to attend/participate in BSACI Committee meetings, irrespective of whether they are members of the Society.

Definitions:

The term 'Biomedical industry' includes:

- Companies, partnerships or individuals involved in the development, manufacture, promotion, sale or supply of products used in medical practice, including (but not limited to) pharmaceutical products, nutritional products, biomedical equipment and devices.
- Companies, partnerships or individuals involved in the development, manufacture, promotion, sale or supply of products or services which are advertised, promoted or marketed as contributing to the promotion or maintenance of good health.
- Trade associations representing companies involved in the above.

If members or employees or expert advisors have interests not specified in this Code but which they believe could be regarded as either influencing their advice or role or be perceived to influence their advice or role, they should declare them.

4. Activities where conflicts of interest may arise

Common activities of the society where conflicts of interest may arise:

- Production and dissemination of guidelines (especially for the management of patients with allergic diseases)
- Production and dissemination of patient leaflets
- Educational activities including conferences, training workshops, scientific meetings, short courses
- Production and dissemination of Educational Materials

- Awards to individuals for achievements in Allergy
- Research in Allergy
- Information given to the Media on behalf of the BSACI
- Information given to the Government of governmental agencies on behalf of the BSACI

5. Interests which should be declared

5.1. Personal pecuniary interests involve a current personal payment, which may either relate to the manufacturer or owner of a product or service being evaluated, in which case it is regarded as ‘specific’ or to the industry or sector from which the product or service comes, in which case it is regarded as ‘non-specific’; for example:

1. Any consultancy, directorship, position in or work for a healthcare industry that attracts regular or occasional payments in cash or in kind, both those which have been undertaken in the 36 months preceding the meeting at which the declaration is made and those which are planned but have not taken place.
2. Any fee-paid work commissioned by a healthcare industry for which the individual is paid in cash or in kind, both those which have been undertaken in the 36 months preceding the meeting at which the declaration is made and those which are planned but have not taken place.
3. Any shareholdings, or other beneficial interests, in shares of a healthcare industry that are either held by the individual their partner or spouse or for which the individual has legal responsibility (for example, children, or relatives whose full Power of Attorney is held by the individual)
4. Expenses and hospitality provided by a healthcare industry company for accommodation, meals and travel to attend meetings and conferences, both which have been undertaken in the 36 months preceding the meeting at which the declaration is made and which are planned but have not taken place.
5. Funds which include investments in the healthcare industry that are held in a portfolio over which individuals have the ability to instruct the fund manager as to the composition of the fund.

No personal interest exists in the case of:

- Assets over which individuals have no financial control (for example, wide portfolio unit trusts and occupational pension funds) and where the fund manager has full discretion as to its composition (for example, the Universities Superannuation Scheme)
- Accrued pension rights from earlier employment in the healthcare industry.

5.2. Non-personal pecuniary interests involve payments or other benefits that benefit a department or organisation for which an individual has managerial responsibility, but which is not received personally – for example:

- The holding of a fellowship endowed by the healthcare industry.
- Any payment or other support that does not convey any pecuniary or material benefit to an individual personally but that might benefit him or her. Examples include:
 - i. a grant from a company for the running of a unit or department for which a member is responsible
 - ii. a grant or fellowship or other payment to sponsor a post or member of staff in the unit for which a member is responsible
 - iii. the commissioning of research or other work by, or advice from, staff who work in a unit for which the member is responsible

5.3. Uncertainty about the need to declare

In the case of uncertainty whether to declare an interest it should be declared.

6. When should interests be declared and what action is required?

- 6.1. It is a requirement for all members of the Society's Committees to complete a Declaration of Interest (DoI) form on appointment, and then annually. Forms are to be completed by the end of January of each year. By signing this form, you are asked to confirm that you have read the policy document 'Code of practice for declaring and dealing with conflicts of interests' by the BSACI, before completing the DoI.
- 6.2. If a form is not received before the first meeting in the year of the respective committee the member is due to attend, the member will be asked to either present a form on the day, or stand down temporarily until a form is received.
- 6.3. The forms themselves will be kept in the room during each Committee meeting for reference. Please note that the completed forms will be held by the Society, and be available for scrutiny, for the duration of membership of the relevant Committee (or, in the case of a Guideline Committee, for as long as the Guideline remains current).
- 6.4. Declarations of Interest will be a standing agenda item at each meeting of the Committee, receipt of forms will be minuted and members will be asked at each meeting for any relevant updates to the annual form. The Chair of each Committee must have read all returns before the first meeting of the year takes place. All other members are encouraged to do the same. Until a form has been returned, the member concerned will not be able to speak or vote at the Committee meeting(s).
- 6.5. The Chair of each Committee may feel that the balance of interests on the Committee has become uneven. In this case s/he should bring this to the attention of the Honorary Secretary and the Chair of the Executive Committee, and in such an unlikely situation, an individual may be asked to step down.
- 6.6. If an enquiry is received from any source about a potential Conflict of Interest by an Officer, Chair of a Committee or the staff of the Society, the enquirer will be asked to make the request in writing to the Honorary Secretary of BSACI who will follow it up with the Chair of the Committee and the individual member concerned. A response will be given within a reasonable period.

7. Confidentiality

Members of Guideline Committees will be asked to sign a Confidentiality Agreement. This is attached as Annex 2.

8. Educational activities

8.1. Publication of guidelines and other educational material

Biomedical companies sometimes provide financial support for educational material, which is produced independently by BSACI members. Unconditional educational grants from the biomedical industry to allow dissemination of completed guidelines, non-promotional educational material, support for publications, website material, etc. may be considered acceptable. It would be advisable for this to involve several companies.

All educational material produced by the BSACI should be created by BSACI members independently. As such BSACI members should be aware that it is undesirable to use ghost written chapters or first drafts written by biomedical companies as it may compromise unbiased documentation. Any input from a company must be transparent and clearly stated. It is unacceptable for material that has been influenced by a biomedical company to appear to be independent.

8.2. Website links

Links to other websites that may contain information on industry, or those that are supported by industry are used on the members section of the BSACI website and the BSACI Annual Meeting website only. No industry-sponsored information appears on the public BSACI website. Links to patient information services on other websites are only agreed if they are non-promotional and are not sponsored by industry. The BSACI website has a disclaimer which states that BSACI is not responsible for content of sites external to BSACI.

8.3. Support of meetings

The BSACI welcomes support from the biomedical industry for its annual meeting as well as for other short courses which helps to reduce the costs for participants. However individuals or meetings should not be compromised by accepting sponsorships. Many companies have promotional stands which the BSACI welcomes. In addition sponsorship is also welcome for specific items such as travel expenses for overseas speakers or other aspects of a meeting, however sponsoring companies should not be involved in deciding the choice of speaker or content of a symposium and the company name should not be attached to the event, unless the company has organised the symposium and paid for speakers. This is then declared as a company symposium in the programme for each meeting.

8.4. Research support

Companies may provide a variety of research support, including sponsoring fellowships, hospital or general practice nurses or specific equipment. This is welcome however in all biomedical studies it is of prime importance that recruitment, time scales and analysis of data is conducted in an academically independent manner, always giving precedence to the welfare of any involved patients and aiming for the highest qualitative standard. All biomedical funded research should adhere to the ABPI guidelines¹ and ². In addition sponsorship proposals should be scrutinised using the questions asked by the Royal College of Nursing³.
